SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITIES AND INTERESTS:

Since his childhood, Mr. Md Amin Helaly engaged himself with voluntary work as his passion was helping people. At an early age, he was enthusiastic about startup business. He has encouraged and helped many new entrepreneurs to start their own businesses. Mr. Helaly is also interested in agriculture. Bangladesh is an overpopulated country so there is less land to cultivate the country has enough workforce. Mr. Amin Helaly has chosen some African countries because there is enough unutilized land available where crops can be grown organically. Therefore, he has visited several African countries. He and some people who have the same interest have established a forum named it Bangladesh-Africa business forum, where his position was Founder General Secretary. Deals are being drawn up between Bangladesh, Uganda, and other African countries for land on which the farmer will grow rice. The Bangladesh Africa Business Forum was developed to connect Bangladeshi investors with the African continent. Its head, Mr. Abdul Matlub Ahmad, who is also chairperson of the Nitol-Niloy Group, says land deals in Africa are needed to ensure food security for the growing population of Bangladesh, which is currently at 164.7 million people (2020). The deal that is now being processed with Uganda is for 20,000 hectares of arable land for 1.5 million US dollars in investment. The deal is expected to create 3 million US dollars' worth of rice and create 25,000 jobs, mostly local.
